EDUCATION

Education is an action to develop a set of knowledge and moral, physical, intellectual, scientific values considered essential to reach the desired level of culture. Education enables the transmission from one generation to the next of the culture necessary for the development of the personality and the social integration of the individual. The education of children and adolescents is based on family, school, society, but also on personal reading and on the use of media such as television or the Internet. The organization of education and teaching has long been the monopoly of religions, which have thus been able to pass on from generation to generation their vision of the world and of morals.
